AT THE HISTORIC WATRES LODGE
A CELEBRATION OF SUMMER
BENEFITING LACAWAC SANCTUARY

SPONSORSHIP INFORMATION
FOR FIVE DECADES, LACAWAC SANCTUARY HAS BEEN AT THE FOREFRONT OF CLIMATE SCIENCE AND WATER QUALITY RESEARCH AND ENVIRONMENTAL EDUCATION IN PENNSYLVANIA.

A HERITAGE OF RESEARCH AND EDUCATION
Lacawac Sanctuary is a biological field station, environmental education center and nature preserve located along Lake Wallenpaupack in the Northern Pocono Mountains of Northeastern Pennsylvania. Lacawac Sanctuary’s property is 545 acres and is comprised of several aquatic and terrestrial systems such as Lake Lacawac, a 52-acre pristine glacial lake designated as Registered Natural Landmark by the National Park Service.

Lacawac provides research and laboratory facilities for a broad range of scientific research along Lake Lacawac and its surroundings as well as providing a diverse program of environmental education for students and the general public. For 50 years Lacawac has worked closely with scientific researchers at universities throughout the Mid-Atlantic region studying important topics such as climate change and water quality.

Lacawac offers a wide range of educational programs for students, families, and civic organizations, including nature walks/hikes, bird walks, workshops, and more.

In addition to its environmental and educational resources, Lacawac is an important cultural landmark in the region. The property includes a number of Victorian-era “cottage” buildings including the Adirondack-style lodge and carriage house. The Sanctuary’s infrastructure was established at the turn of the 20th century and today stands as a historically important estate and is in the National Register of Historic Places.

SUPPORTING OUR CAUSE
Founded in 1966, Lacawac is a nonprofit 501c3 administered by a board of trustees with a mission of Research, Education and Preservation and relies solely on the support of individuals and businesses.

If environmental education and the protection of the environment and the Earth for generations to come is important to you, we encourage you to visit lacawac.org to learn more about how you can play a role in our mission and our work.
