A HERITAGE OF RESEARCH AND EDUCATION

Lacawac Sanctuary is a biological field station, environmental education center and nature preserve located along Lake Wallenpaupack in the Northern Pocono Mountains of Northeastern Pennsylvania. Lacawac Sanctuary's property is 545 acres and consists of several aquatic and terrestrial systems such as Lake Lacawac, a 52-acre pristine glacial lake designated as Registered Natural Landmark by the National Park Service.

Lacawac provides research and laboratory facilities for a broad range of scientific research along Lake Lacawac and its surroundings as well as providing a diverse program of environmental education for students and the general public. Lacawac offers a wide range of educational programs for students, families, and civic organizations, including nature walks/hikes, bird walks, workshops, and more. In addition to its environmental and educational resources, Lacawac is an important cultural landmark in the region. The property includes a number of Victorian era "cottage" buildings including the Adirondackstyle lodge and carriage house. The Sanctuary's infrastructure was established at the turn of the 20th century and today stands as a historically important estate and is in the National Register of Historic Places.

ABOUT THE EVENT

Join us Saturday August 15 at 6:00 PM at Lacawac Sanctuary's Watres Lodge for a Farm-to-Plate event curated by Lacawac Sanctuary. Enjoy live music amidst the lush backdrop of Lacawac's forest, with craft cocktails, wine and a locally sourced menu provided by Settlers Inn. Smart casual attire recommended. Floors are not conducive to high heels.

All proceeds from this event will benefit Lacawac's mission and work to preserve the environment and shape the next generation of Earth stewards and scientists.
